Animal food service growing amid slump

FOURTEEN years ago Neil and Lorraine Stapleton, from Honiton in Devon, started their Oscar franchise with the aim of enjoying a better standard of living and having more quality time to spend with their young family.

Mrs Stapleton said: "We stuck to that belief and, having focused on how to save our customers time and money, our business is still growing despite the struggling economy.

"Our quality pet nutrition products help to reduce feeding rates, offering greater value for money, and also help to reduce unnecessary veterinary bills.

"Combined with the home delivery service, we have also made a difference to the fuel costs of shopping for pet food."

She added: "Oscar has enabled us to enjoy a special lifestyle.

"We've been able to work together and be there to see our children grow up."
